Exhibition Introduction

Living space is not only a physical but also a psychological framework to life. Writer Alain de Botton describes a house with terrace by the tree-lined street in his book 'The Architecture of Happiness'.

The flagstones on the ground floor speak of serenity and aged grace, while the regularity of the kitchen cabinets offers a model of unthreatening order and discipline. The dining table, with its waxy tablecloth printed with large buttercups, suggests a burst of playfulness which is thrown into relief by a sterner concrete wall nearby. Along the stairs, small still-lives of eggs and lemons draw attention to the intricacy and beauty of everyday things. On a ledge beneath a window, a glass jar of cornflowers helps to resist the pull towards dejection. ... its rooms nevertheless give evidence of a happiness.

Through the description, he expresses the aspects of house not only as a physical space, but also as a sanctuary. There are various ways to create cozy living spaces depending on the appropriate furniture, necessary objects and meaningful decorative items. Anyone can learn to appreciate and enjoy creating great living spaces. But it is not easy to introduce emotional value to living spaces.

Gallery HUUE is pleased to curate an exhibition to provide ideas of how artwork and art pieces can shift any room into a beautifully artistic space with various paintings, sculptures, and craft works. We will present the significant meaning of art, which shapes our living spaces and how they meld with our lives. With this exhibition, Gallery HUUE would like to define that art is nothing farfetched from our life, but rather something that has always been with us; Life in art, Art in life.

In this exhibition, the artists has painted and created artworks with an everyday subject meant to fit in various living spaces. These works will extend their purpose to actively participate in creating and re-creating your living spaces.
